Doors and vendor booths open at 5 p.m. Advance tickets are $3 and are available at the Rome News-Tribune, the Calhoun Times, the Cedartown Standard and the Rockmart Journal. Cooking trends are ever changing. Leisured dining is making a comeback. Taking time to appreciate every bite and enjoy both the food and the social experience is catching on as a healthy trend. Awakening to savor the flavors of food has renewed interest in foods' healthful effects. Americans want healthier food, but they want it to be quick and easy.

On the flip side, Americans crave their sweet treats. The last impression you give your guests at the dinner table is dessert. There is no point in having an outstanding appetizer and entrée if the dessert is only mediocre. A terrific dessert brings a smile and exclamations of delight to everyone's lips. What's the number one favorite type of dessert? Chocolate, of course! Chocolate cake, chocolate mousse, chocolate soufflé or any other chocolate creation.

Taste of Home Cooking School is ready to present something healthy and something sweet at The Forum in Rome on Tuesday, Oct. 28 as the Rome News-Tribune hosts an evening of "Fresh Ideas for Fall."

Culinary specialist, Michelle Roberts will be preparing 12 flavorful fast-to-fix recipes perfect for brunch and dinner as well as appetizer or dessert gatherings.

The holidays are approaching and if you are looking for a new twist to the usual turkey entrée you'll find this special sections packed with delectable recipes by local Rome News-Tribune as well as national sponsors.

You'll receive a complementary "Taste of Home Cooking School Brand-Name" cookbook with all 12 featured recipes plus 170 more Taste of Home tested, tasted and approved recipes. Local businesses have donated a variety of merchandise. National sponsors who work in association with the cooking school have contributed special gifts, as well.
